Longer, for press and introductions

Bolutife Awakan is a brand designer, design leader and founder working between Lagos and London. She started out as a self-taught graphic designer, and over more than a decade has built brands, led creative teams and started ventures of her own.

She has created identities and brand systems for companies across fintech, health tech, music and fashion, including Terragon, Interswitch and Traction Apps, whose rebrand supported a $6M raise. She is currently Group Design Lead at Risevest.

Through Design Lever Inc., she helps African businesses build stronger design functions. Through Lilac Africa, she creates access to education, mentorship and career opportunities for women in design and technology. She speaks on branding, design leadership, the business of design and creative careers.

Speaking

TOPICS AND TALKS

I've spent over a decade designing, leading teams, and working with businesses. When I speak, I share what that experience has taught me, including the things I wish I'd understood much earlier.

BRANDING	How branding shapes what people think and do, and how to put that to work.
DESIGN LEADERSHIP	How great designers become great leaders, and what emerging markets can teach the world.
BUSINESS OF DESIGN	How design earns revenue, saves money and drives growth, and how to measure it so the business believes it.
CREATIVE CAREERS	Building a sustainable creative career, including how to price creative work.
WOMEN IN TECHNOLOGY	Women's empowerment, social enterprising, and building a personal brand that creates opportunities.
